

Sheldon Avenue, N.E.

22 Sheldon S.E. Grand Rapids Children's Museum. Built in 1936 in what was then called Fulton Street Park, the building was a WPA project which originally served as the Veterans' Memorial Park Building, and was a comfort station for travelers. The compact Indiana limestone structure features a beautiful terrazzo floor, clay tiled roof, and original window hardware. Through the years, it has been used for a variety of organizations, including the AARP Senior Employment Services, a city tourist office, and a career counseling office for veterans of World War II.
